Porcelain explained

Brett have five porcelain ranges, GeoCeramica®, Eden, Elure, Elegante and Eclipse - all of which are manufactured to the highest standards.

Each product range is precision cut after processing to ensure the finest tolerances and have a proven low potential for slip when tested against UK standards.

There are a multitude of external porcelain and ceramic paving options now available on the market. But not all porcelain product are the same.

Our simple guide to getting the right product for your project:

- Insist on porcelain rather than ceramic; it is stronger, and offers greater stain, scratch, water and frost resistance than ceramic.
- Always ask for a Declaration of Performance (DOP) for your chosen product to be sure it is porcelain. Look for water absorption data of less than 0.5% as well as UK measures of slip resistance in accordance with HSE guidelines - do not rely on 'R' values. These factors are the key to a good quality product.
- Looks are a key consideration when selecting porcelain paving. A good porcelain supplier should be able to tell you exactly how many different surface variations there are in a specific product - the more variations, the better the look.
- Be sure to get reputable installation advice from a Brett Approved Installer. Some products require adhesion aids that need to be considered in your overall costs. Products like our GeoCeramica® porcelain range, however, do not require these due to their hybrid pre-bonded mortar-base design.
